Excerpt: . . . but did not remain steadily, coming off now and then for a few minutes. To-night she is on to remain, but as yet there is no egg. Jan. 24. -----To-day GF 1 acted, during all the morning, as if she had deserted the nest she had made. She acted like a dove that, after rearing young, is looking for a place at a distance for a new nest. She flew back and forth in a very uneasy manner, trying to get out of the pen. Instead of going to her nest, she went into a box at the opposite side of the pen, where there was no straw, and spent some time there with the male, but no straws were brought to her. At 5 p. m., however, I find her on the nest, and apparently she will remain overnight, as she...
