THE LACKAWANNA and BLOOMSBURGf RAILROAD COMPANY. A railroad company having located and built their road, erected fences on each side, and occupied the location thus defined for a period of eighteen years, the owner of the lands through which the road passed having during such period occupied and cultivated his lands up to the fences, an injunction, until the hearing or until otherwise ordered, was granted to restrain the company from changing such location. In Equity. Opinion by Dana, A. L. J. An injunction having been granted without previous notice to the defendants, the motion for its dissolution under the 75th equity rule was argued by counsel, and upon the part of the defendants no answer having been made, the affidavit of David T. Bound, and by the plaintiff, that of John S. Marcy, former owner of the lands involved in the controversy, were read. The affidavit of Mr. Bound does not set forth that he is a member, or employee, or agent of the corporation, defendant; but upon the argument it was orally stated and understood that he is the superintendent of the road. The affidavit of John. S. Marcy in support of the bill was read under objection. Upon the papers it appears that about the year 1854 the defendants located their road, of the width, of sixty feet, across the lands of John Marcy, the plaintiff, and they aver that this location has neither been changed, nor that a...
